MISS IRELAND GETS ACADÉMIE FACIAL ON XPOSÉ

When TV3 offered Miss Ireland Sinead Noonan the chance to have some pampering for its flagship show, Xposé, the Meath beauty jumped at the opportunity. "My skin was dry and dehydrated after all the travelling I had been doing and I was in desperate need of a great facial that was not only results driven, but pampering as well," explained Sinead. "I decided to go for an Académie facial, mainly because I had heard so much about the products from the rest of the Miss World contestants in South Africa and was delighted to discover that the range is also available in salons in this country." Sinead was booked into the Shelbourne Hotel in Dublin, where Académie trainer Tara Collier performed the treatment on her, as well as Xposé presenter, Aisling Mc Laughlin. "While extraordinarily beautiful with almost perfect skin, Sinead had a few skin issues that we addressed during the treatment," according to Tara, "mainly dehydration and a minor breakout on the chin." Tara chose to perform the Académie Essential Aromatherapy Treatment; the ultimate relaxation treatment for the face, body and mind, suitable for all skin types. "The treatment begins with a back massage to relax the client and really get them into the pampering zone," explains Collier. "Then the skin is cleansed, toned and exfoliated before being massaged with a delicious Macadamia Nut Oil. However, the real drama is in the mask, which sees a powder shaken with warm water and a drop of essence. The treatment is finished with a moisturising treatment. All in all it's a fantastic treatment that delivers results with luxury in equal measure." And the results? "I am absolutely delighted with the results," said Sinead. "The treatment was so relaxing and my skin looks amazing- so fresh and glowing! The Miss World contestants were right- Académie really is a fantastic range and I will definitely be booking myself in for more treatments in the future!"
